Dear Ms. Kay:

Subject: Norval Morrisseau

We are Solicitors for Norval Morrisseau. We were advised by Mr. Morrisseau through his attorney, Gabe Vadas, that various artworks that you are offering for sale attributed to our client are in fact fakes. We and our client are prepared to meet with you and review and advise you of which works you have which are misattributed to our client and must be destroyed or have the name removed from such works and all advertising of such works as being by Norval Morrisseau cease and desist.

At the present time, our client advises us that the works in your possession advertised on your website as by Morrisseau are not by his hand.

Immediately, advise us as to what other works you have, which you are selling as being authentic works by Norval Morrisseau so that they too can be reviewed with our client.

The sale of these fakes are damaging to our client, his reputation, his market and his copyright and intellectual property rights.

Unless you forthwith cease describing and selling these misattributed works as being by our client, we shall no alternative but to recommend the appropriate court action, in which we will claim an injunction, damages, punitive damages and costs on a full solicitor and client indemnity.

May we hear from you within the next five (5) days.

Yours truly,

FRASER MILNER CASGRAIN LLP
